Introduction

This course is designed to support Learners who want to take the role of Loader on a shoot.

Overview in brief

Shotgun field shooting is an enduring pastime and business, and the loading and assisting role of a Loader is a vital part of a shoot's success.

Our course will help you to develop your skills in that role. As you'd expect, safety issues are paramount every step of the way.

The finer details

You'll need to have previous knowledge and experience in shooting to be eligible for our course.

You do not need to bring your own shotgun or slip as these will be provided on the day.

We'll guide you through the key health and safety issues, as well as expected standards of behaviour.

You'll learn about the weapon itself and receive training in general firearms legislation.

The safe loading and handling of both single and double guns will be covered.

There will also be sessions on gun and equipment maintenance and driven grouse shooting.

Worth noting: You won't need to bring ammunition. This will be provided by the shooting school or ground.

You'll be permitted to handle, strip and clean the shotgun as directed by the instructor.

Who should attend?

This product is designed for Learners who have experience of shotguns. The course is designed to consolidate and improve existing shotgun and field shooting competence as these apply to the loading and assisting role. Learners may progress to engagement as loaders and assistants in simulated driven clay activities; and, formal game shooting, either recreationally or linked to a work role requirement.

What will be covered?
